Orphans for Adoption

American Foster Father To Baby-Lift 150 Koreans

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Harry Holt, the Creswell, Ore., farmer who has brought more than 100 Korean orphans to this country for adoption, will leave today for Korea, planning this time to bring-in at least 150.

Holt, who brought the others to this country in groups of 10 and 20, said he plans to charter three or four planes for the baby-lift.

The children are the abandoned offspring of Korean mothers and American servicemen. Holt has adopted eight of them himself. Others have gone to other homes. Holt said he is arranging the mass flight because time is running out on permissive legislation for entry of the orphans. As it is, he said, these will have to come in without visas because immigration quotas have been used up. He said, however, that through Oregon's senators and the administration the way had been cleared for the adoptive children to come into the country until congress can take up a bill on it next spring.

Air Force Wiped Out

Egypt's Resistance Crumbling; Troops to Land Within Hours

Matter of Days May End Fight

(Compiled from UP, AP and Reuters)

Egyptian resistance to the combined British, French and Israeli assault is rapidly crumbling and an end of the uneven struggle is confidently expected within a matter of days.

Latest reports received in London from the battlefield indicate that the Egyptian air force has been virtually wiped out and that little if any resistance is expected to be offered Anglo-French troops due to land on Egyptian soil "within a matter of hours."

East of the Suez Canal Israeli forces have gained complete control of the Sinai Desert and Gaza Strip areas and are now engaged in mopping up isolated outposts.

As a prelude to the landing of troops, Britain and France last night warned all merchant shipping to stay clear of the approaches to the Suez Canal. To emphasize their avowed intention, Britain's official radio station on the invasion base of Cyprus repeatedly warned Arabs that "our warships will disembark tanks and guns on Egyptian soil."

The Allies' timetable calls for a completion of military operations early next week. It is known that the Allies' hope for a speedy, on-the-spot settlement is based on the assumption that

Other crisis news on Page 14

President Nasser will be overthrown and his government replaced by one willing to negotiate.

Timing of the ground assault is believed to have been fixed last night at a meeting in London of Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau, and their respective top military advisers.

The secret meeting lasted 90 minutes and no statement was issued.

Ostensibly the meeting had been called to consider the UN cease-fire order, but highly placed sources said the two powers firmly intend to defy the UN demand, finish their "police operation" and then turn over policing duties to an international force as soon as one is formed by the world body.

Eden will state Britain's stand on the UN request in the House of Commons today. The emergency session of the House is the first called on a Saturday since 1949.

Meanwhile, three columns of Israeli mechanized forces drove on toward the Suez Canal last night to cap the conquest of the Sinai Peninsula and the Gaza Strip, an Israeli government spokesman announced.

But a possible menace to Israel loomed to the east. Radio Israel said troops are pouring into neighboring Jordan from both Iraq and Syria.

Blood Bath Feared

(From UP and CP)

BUDAPEST, Hungary—Russian troops poured into rebellious Hungary yesterday, sealing off the satellite nation from the West and turning back a convoy of American diplomats and their wives and children seeking to flee from threatened Budapest.

As Soviet tanks, troops and planes crossed into Hungary from Russia, new rebel attacks broke out in Budapest, and the nation was threatened with a new blood bath.

Seven Canadian citizens all from Quebec and Ontario, made their way out of strife-ridden Hungary to Vienna after a sealed border delayed their departure.

Maj.-Gen. Caroly Bela, commander of the Budapest area, reported that the revolutionaries' capital was enclosed in a steel triangle of Russian tanks and troops.

Col. Paul Maleter, deputy defence minister, appealed for "moral and material help" from the west. He said that if Nagy's so-called neutralist coalition regime is destroyed "anarchy will follow and the Soviets will have an excuse to use their forces to restore order."

Until Stolen Truck, Children Found

Young Mother Lives in Fear

A young Saanich mother lived in fear for 85 harrowing minutes last night while all Greater Victoria police forces mobilized resources to hunt a stolen panel truck with her two sleeping children inside.

Mrs. Barbara Williams, 30, 1133 Reynolds, left six-year-old son, Mark, and three-year-old daughter, Andoline Jane, sleeping on a mattress in the back of her panel truck while she shipped into an auction room at View and Cook.

When she came out, the truck and children were gone.

She informed city police at 10:20 p.m. An area-wide police alarm went out for the distinctive, pink-colored vehicle. Esquimalt police located it at HMCS Naden parking lot at 11:45 p.m.

Daily Colonist reporters at Mrs. Williams' home above St. Peter's Church, where she had returned while police were on their hunt, drove her to the police station when the report came in that her children were found—still sleeping in the truck in the parking lot.

Later, both were chewing gum given them by policemen, and fair-haired, chubby Mark said "I wasn't afraid" as the mother scooped both of them into her arms.

Mrs. Williams and her 28-year-old husband, Philip, came to Canada a year ago from Kenya, and are caretakers at the church. Mrs. Williams is a kindergarten teacher.

The couple has another child, Simon, four.

Mr. Williams works for the B.C. Power Commission and was in the Interior at Passmore, near Nelson, at the time.

"I might have been in the auction, to buy some things for the home, for half an hour," Mrs. Williams said.

"I purposely left the children under a bright light so they would sleep. It was the most harrowing moment of my life."

Secretaries of State for Decade...

Ten Years of Diplomatic Fencewalking Fail

By MARTIN S. HAYDEN

North American Newspaper Alliance

WASHINGTON—Ten years of diplomatic fence-walking by successive secretaries of state trying to observe both the freedom-to-all-people guarantee of the United Nations charter, and the necessities of Anglo-French colonialism, have ended with the British attack on Egypt.

As they look at the wreckage of the Big Three alliance that has endured since Hitler's invasion of Europe, state department experts here are agreed on two points:

1. That Washington's relations with London will go from the presently "bad" to "much worse" until the Anglo-French team runs the course on what the state department believes is their plan to smash Egypt's Gamel Abdel Nasser, wipe out the kingdom of Jordan and solidify European control of the Suez Canal and the Arab world, and.

2. That, when the British, French and Americans once more join forces, as they ultimately must in the face of the continued Communist threat to all of them, it will be on a basis of public American disassociation with Europe's colonial claims.

From George Marshall through Dean Acheson to John Foster Dulles, U.S. secretaries have cursed the necessity of diluting America's observance of UN charter principles with recognition of the "facts of life" of the colonial empires of all-important European allies.

It has led to American guarantees of continued British rule of Hong Kong and Singapore and thereby strengthened Communist China's claim to being the protector of "Asia for the Asians."

It cost the United States the friendship of India's Jawaharlal Nehru; complicated American relations with the Philippines, Thailand and Pakistan; made difficult the defence of Indo-China; strained U.S. relations with Greece, and complicated U.S. air base negotiations with North Africans.

During the almost forgotten days when Stern-Gang terrorists were underlining Jewish demands that Britain end its Palestine mandate, Washington was accused by the British of secretly aiding the Jews and by the Jews of failing to support their independence dream. In 1954, when Egyptians were demanding evacuation of British troops, Secretary Dulles was again the "middle man" abused by both sides.

Ironically, the present turmoil stems indirectly from what to many looked like Dulles' great diplomatic "triumph" in that ticklish negotiation; his success in persuading the British to give up the Suez bastion prevented war in 1954 but it also swelled Nasser's head and started the chain of events that led to Egypt's seizure of the canal.

As Washington sees it, Sir Anthony Eden, like other prime ministers past, has made a bet that, with little Jordan as the pawn, he can divide the Arab world and prevent the Moslem holy war that could engulf all the Middle East and wreck Western Europe's economy by cutting off its oil.

According to state department information and belief, Eden plans to wipe Jordan off the map. In "payment" for services rendered in starting the present turmoil, Israel would be given the Arab half of Jerusalem, which is now policed by Arab Legionnaires, and the western part of Jordan proper. The rest of Jordan, according to this reported Anglo-French plan, would go to Iraq, in return for that more-powerful Arab country's agreement to sit tight and not join its forces in the holy Moslem war which Nasser will undoubtedly call for.

When and if the plan works, Eden will be ready to see what he can do about restoring good relations with Washington. Meanwhile, John Foster Dulles, the would-be peace-maker, is again the "man in the middle."

Provincial Talks Scheduled

Parley to Tackle Traffic Toll

Another step in the intensive campaign to reduce B.C.'s mounting traffic fatality toll was taken yesterday with the announcement that a provincial conference on highway traffic safety will be held in Vancouver Nov. 24.

The plan is to increase public education by reaching individual drivers and impressing them with their personal responsibility for traffic safety.

The conference is being staged by the B.C. Safety Council and the attorney-general's department. "I am pleased and grateful for the B.C. Safety Council's interest in the traffic question and their willingness and desire to expand the role of the council," said Attorney-General Robert Bonner in making the announcement.

Up until the present time the safety council has been primarily concerned with industrial safety. Mr. Bonner said the council's efforts in promoting industrial safety in B.C. had been "outstandingly successful."

"In approaching the broader question of highway traffic safety it is hoped to enlist the active aid of the widespread organization . . . and to expand that work into the general field of communities, either in co-operation with existing local traffic safety councils or . . . by establishing them," he said. Superintendent of motor vehicles George Lindsay is now conferring with the safety council executive to plan the agenda for the conference.

The program of provincial highway safety involves four phases:

Highway engineering, law enforcement, motor vehicle administration such as driver licensing, testing and suspensions, and finally

"While the first three phases have a good record in this province, especially when compared with the rest of Canada, it does appear that public education requires greater emphasis," said Mr. Bonner.

Safety council delegates from all parts of the province as well as provincial government officials will attend the to map out the program. B.C. is faced with a bad highway fatality record this year.

Latest, and incomplete figures, up until the end of October place the number of deaths on provincial highways at 241 compared with 179 at the same time a year ago. This year's figures are expected to rise still further when complete returns are received from all areas of the province.

Up until yesterday there had been 75 cases of polio reported and two deaths, compared to 135 cases and three deaths at this time a year ago.

"It's much too early to say whether the Salk vaccine is the reason," commented deputy

Constructive Proposal

R.T. HON. SIR ANTHONY EDEN'S earlier declaration that Britain would be glad to turn over the task of restoring peace in the Israel-Arab conflict to the United Nations if it was prepared to act in the present crisis bore fruit yesterday. This was the genesis of the proposal made by Hon. Lester B. Pearson on the floor of the United Nations Assembly, when he explained Canada's reasons for withholding its vote. In brief it is that the United Nations, following the course adopted in Korea, should send an international police force into the area not only to make sure that the ordered cease-fire is obeyed, but that time will thus be won to work out a permanent settlement of the basic conflict.

On behalf of Canada, Mr. Pearson went on to indicate that this nation would be prepared to contribute directly to the composition of such a policing body under United Nations auspices.

There are good reasons that can be advanced in favor of this step. By recognition of British and French sincerity in their present concern over the whole Middle East situation it would repair a bad UN omission. It would also draw closer together the British and American viewpoints, by pledging UN action now to cure a dangerous situation and pave the way for ultimate settlement under the rules of the world body. It would reassure Israel and the Arab lands of a full hearing of their complaints.

This turn in the developments of the last few hours overshadows much that had gone before. It brings the hope that the United Nations can end the division that not only has rendered it impotent in the face of a grave crisis but also placed great strain on Western powers who are truly concerned with peace. It would reassert the authority of the world body in terms of action which could effectively be implemented. Above all it would restore the spirit of the UN charter, of greater importance than its letter. It remains to be seen if this course, suggested by Britain in the first instance, will commend itself to the United Nations as a way out of the confusion of the present. It should.

Mr. Martin's Impatience

DOMINION Health and Welfare Minister Paul Martin seems to be feeling peevish over the fact that seven of the 10 Provinces are not rallying round to help him win next year's federal election for the Liberals. There can be little doubt that a scheme of national hospital insurance was to have been the government's trump card, but the way things have been going makes it look as if Mr. Martin may not hold it after all.

The federal government's formula for national hospital insurance requires the co-operation of the Provinces, but unfortunately for the Liberals' chances of presenting it on the election platform as an accomplishment rather than an ambition, the Provinces just aren't co-operating—or not yet, at any rate. So far only three—British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan—have accepted the proposal in principle. The support from the west is understandable because all three Provinces have hospital insurance systems of their own and extension on a national basis, with the federal government taking over a share of the cost, could only be to their advantage.

The others, including the Provinces with the biggest population, have not yet said yes or no, and because of this indecision Mr. Martin is becoming restive. Accordingly he is reported from Ottawa to be preparing a "selling" campaign. If he does bring that sort of pressure to bear on the undecided Provinces the minister will be acting directly opposite to his own assurances several months ago that adoption or rejection of the federal plan would be left to the free choice of the Provinces and that persuasion would not be applied from Ottawa.

It may be that some of the Provinces have dawdled with the offer longer than is necessary for a thorough inspection of it, and that the minister's impatience is excusable; but coercion by way of a "selling" campaign is not likely to influence them favorably. The minister is in an awkward spot: if he becomes dictatorial and demands an answer forthwith, that may bring him the wrong one, which wouldn't exactly be helpful on the election platform.

Visiting Made Easy

IT isn't very often that a radical departure from old rules and customs meets with the 100-per-cent approval accorded to Royal Jubilee Hospital's new "open house" plan for visitors to the sick. Introduced experimentally and with some misgivings, the policy of unrestricted visiting within a period of five hours every day has been pronounced a success by all concerned: patients, visitors, doctors, nurses and the hospital administration. Far from disrupting hospital routine, extension of the visiting period has made it run more smoothly, and apparently in no particular is there cause for regret about the change. Consequently the 3 p.m. to 8 p.m. schedule has been made permanent.

This policy will give much pleasure and comfort to both patients and relatives; and it should also contribute to the process of recovery, for it is recognized nowadays that peace of mind is as important a factor as any other. Sick people unable to see their loved ones for days on end because visiting hours are unsuitable are apt to become restive and unnecessarily anxious. There are, of course, cases where visits may have a harmful effect, but those are taken care of in any event by special orders of the doctors in charge. For most patients visits of family and close friends impart a "lift" that has definite therapeutic value.

Royal Jubilee Hospital serves a wide area, and the extended visiting hours are of special benefit to people living in the outer suburbs and beyond. For many older people and those who do not own cars they make hospital visits much easier than they ever were before; for some where bus service is infrequent they create an opportunity that just didn't exist previously. And with all this the duties of the hospital staff are reported to have been made easier. It is a very happy outcome to a rather daring plunge.

Interpreting the News

Soviets Taking the Cream

By DAVID BARNETT

North American Newspaper Alliance

WASHINGTON — Soviet Russia stands to lose more than military and political ground in Eastern Europe as a result of the satellite revolt. Also at stake is the flow of vital products extorted from these countries at bargain prices.

Losing authority over the troubled countries would cost Russia her program to use the satellites as a bargain basement through long-range economic exploitation.

The plan has meant the systematic extraction of any satellite product desired by the Soviet Union either for its own uses or for resale to other countries.

Soviet economic imperialism has been particularly burdensome to the two satellites now erupting, for both Poland and Hungary basically were agricultural states. To fit them into the Soviet plan—rapid industrialization was ordered.

According to a Soviet handbook published at the end of 1955, the Hungarians have been delivering to the Soviets ships, cranes and other lifting apparatus, locomotives, food products and fabricated consumers' goods.

Just after the Second World War, the Russians dismantled Polish plants and equipment and created joint-stock companies, in which the Soviet Union held most of the shares, to operate what was left.

The Soviets also collected from Germany reparations, 15 per cent of which under the Potsdam agreement were to go to Poland. According to the United States Information Agency, the Soviets, as reparations' trustees for Poland, still owe that country in this account at least $1,300,000,000.

Enforced expansion was ordered in Poland for goods that were primarily for export to the Soviet Union. This resulted in unbalancing the economy by emphasis on coal mining, ship building and sugar production.

All the satellites suffered from the Russian practice of buying at privileged prices in one satellite and reselling in another at great profit.

Poland was compelled to sell to the Soviet Union at the equivalent of $17.50 a ton large quantities of coke. On this coke the Poles had to pay transportation charges to the Polish border, making the net price to them only $13.25 a ton. The Soviet Union then resold the coke to Hungary at $23 a ton. At the time high-grade coke was selling on the world market at $19.50 a ton. According to the United States Information Agency, the Soviets made a profit on this one deal of more than $2,000,000.

Radio Warsaw on Oct. 5 announced a new five-year plan for Poland that called for a 53 per cent increase in industrial output and further strengthening of economic ties with other countries of the Soviet bloc.

Evidence that any new "Titos" that come into power in the satellites will demand a fairer economic share is provided in statements of the new Polish Communist leader, Wladyslaw Gomulka.

While still a Communist, Gomulka has called past economic policies in Poland a failure and has particularly deplored the results of the heavy industry policy.

"The whole nation," he said, "has had to pay for a bad economic policy."

The emphasis on heavy industry has resulted in a scarcity of consumers' goods in Poland, a condition that prompted the Polish riots and the more recent revolt.

"No, no — Just the one at the end"

Makers of B.C. Gerald Waring

By FRANK KELLEY

ONE CAN imagine the suggestion appearing in a recent issue of the Colonist and made by the paper's London correspondent, Richard L. Thomas, will meet with approval of the majority of British Columbians who will get to hear of it. For the occasion will present a splendid opportunity to bring the story of this province up to date in the land that supplied practically all of the men with the grit and stamina so necessary to the making of its history both before and subsequent to that memorable day of November 19, 1858, when it was declared a Colony of Britain at Fort Langley, old Hudson's Bay post on the Fraser River, which is to be the centre of the centenary celebrating its founding come November 19, 1958.

Can anything be more inspiring than the journals of those gallant Britishers who by sea and land made it possible to pass on to other men who, by virtue of fine administrative abilities and know-how, as the years passed moulded its destiny in the ways of civilization worthy of the Britain that produced them. That is where the most of them, either by birth or descent, hailed from, making it possible, in the best of British traditions, to celebrate the centenary of the colony that was named British Columbia two years from this month. There were Captains James Cook and George Vancouver who figured prominently in the marine annals; there were Mackenzie, Fraser, Thompson and Stewart among those most entitled to be credited with the exploration of its land areas, making it possible to hand on to other men, like James Douglas and men of the colonial and provincial areas, who have written some worthwhile pages of B.C.'s graphic story.

No story, naturally, could be complete without a mention of two of the company of Royal Engineers, who had arrived in what was generally known as New Caledonia before 1858, and the magnificent contributions that body of men made to the early progress of the province could also be stressed in any exhibit that might be considered to take place in the land whence they came. The reputation of the Engineers will be entwined with the B.C. story as long as the province lasts.

The Royal Engineers, present at Fort Langley, when the colony was inaugurated, figured in the preservation of law and order. The force consisted of 165 officers and men. Quoting from Judge Howay's history of the province, "All important explorations in the colony, a great deal of the surveying of town sites and county lands and selections for the lines of roads were performed by them. Portions of the Douglas-Lillooet, the Hope-Similkameen, the Cariboo and the North Roads were built by them. Maps of the colony and of portions of it were made by them."

Then when the detachment was disbanded in 1855 and Colonel Moody, his officers and about 20 men returned to England the balance of the force remained behind, took up homesteads, furnishing a splendid type of settlers to the colony and proving a great asset. One could go on and on, citing the names of stalwarts who administered affairs of the colony of British Columbia and its courts of justice. Space is not sufficient to name them, however. The history of British Columbia recounts their records for the benefit of any wishing to peruse it during Centenary Year.

THE announced intention of the premier of Saskatchewan to "hound" Ross Thatcher into agreeing to a public debate has a ring of vindictiveness which sounds strange from a parson-turned-politician who likely will be the CCF's next national leader.

For, mark you, Premier Douglas is not Thatcher's opponent in the forthcoming federal election. That individual is Hazen Argue, the one-time boy MP whose riding of Assiniboia, Sask., Thatcher is trying to capture.

A joint meeting featuring Thatcher and Argue would be well worth while. Both men have been MPs since 1945, and CCF MPs at that, until Thatcher broke from the party two years ago to become an independent and, last spring, a Liberal. One-time roommates in the Commons, they ended up scarcely on speaking terms because of Thatcher's opposition to Argue's pie-in-the-sky proposals.

Argue and Thatcher could debate federal election issues from the same platform and give the voters an excellent opportunity to judge them side by side. But Premier Douglas' intervention is another matter.

The impression left by Douglas' threat is that the CCF is as much concerned with punishing a traitor to socialism as with defeating the man who is Argue's Liberal opponent.

Douglas is a spellbinder on the hustings, and there is little doubt as to who would come out best in his proposed platform encounter with Thatcher, if the latter walks into the premier's trap. But it would in no way help the voters make the right decision if Douglas' silver-tongued oratory talked rings around the less mentally agile candidate. The issue isn't whether Douglas or Thatcher is the better debater, but whether Argue or Thatcher would make the better representative for the people of Assiniboia to send to Ottawa.

Douglas' publicly-stated reason for seeking to lower the boom personally on Thatcher is that "I object to a man going out of his province and sneering the province when he hasn't the courage to come to Saskatchewan and make the statements where he can be answered."

This was in reference to Thatcher's speech in the Commons May 22, in which Thatcher listed seven of the Douglas government's 19 ventures into socialized industry as failures, and added that the others survived only because they were government monopolies.

Thatcher was using these examples to argue, against the CCF position favoring state ownership of the Trans-Canada gas pipeline. At that time the Saskatchewan provincial election campaign was just getting under way. After his speech Thatcher went to Moose Jaw and campaigned for a week in support of the independent candidate—who, incidentally, was defeated. Thus, contrary to Premier Douglas' assertion, Thatcher did go to Saskatchewan, and he took part in the campaign in which Douglas could have answered his allegations.

In spite of the fact that about a quarter of Assiniboia was part of Thatcher's old riding of Moose Jaw prior to the redrawing of boundary lines in 1952, even Thatcher admits the odds are about two to one against him. Thus there's no reason to doubt the assertion of a high CCF official here that "We can take Ross in Assiniboia any day, without Tommy Douglas lifting his hand."

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

THERE are two portrait paintings in our family. One was painted by an outstanding and fashionable artist of his time. It was a perfect likeness of the sitter. It flattered both the sitter and the artist. At the time it was painted, and for a good many years after, it was considered an article of great value. It hung in two dining rooms, first in the dining room of the father and later in that of his son. It is up in the attic now, a cumbersome, dated, stuffy, entirely unsuitable object that will end up in a rummage sale some time in the future, for the value of its ornate gilt frame. It never was anything but a colored photograph.

The other portrait was painted by a young artist who had a brief and inglorious career, who tried his hand at everything from water colors and etchings to portraits, landscapes, still life. He succeeded, so they say, at nothing. But man, he succeeded in this portrait. At the time it was painted it created a furore in the family, because it did not flatter the sitter, and many of the family and friends insisted that it did not even look like him. We knew that it did more than look like the sitter; it looked into him, penetrated him in his past, present and future. But above all, it was a painting, which is far more important than a portrait. It has beauty. It arrests the eye in that indefinable way art, in any form, should arrest the senses. It is as decorative today as it was 50 years ago when painted, and will be decorative 50 years hence. Its frame has been changed three times to suit the changing fashions of furniture and interior decoration. But nothing changes the painting. It will dominate any room it will ever be in.

The man who sat for it is remembered, by reason of the painting, as if he were still alive, for it tells about him as if he were a living event or incident in all our lives. The poor old duffer who sat for the other, the fashionable likeness, with his head held so stately, his hands crossed elegantly on his lap, has long ago been forgotten. Like his portrait in the attic, he has been shoved away into the attic of our remembrance. Like it, he faces the wall.

Family portraits are coming back into fashion. It is said the picture window started them back. If there is nothing to see out of a picture window, there ought to be something to see in it. And portraits are one of those things. But not portraits in the tradition of the tinted photograph. From those I have lately seen, our Canadian artists are being encouraged to do paintings first; and likenesses as they, not the family, see them.

Flush of Civic Pride

By ORMOND MARRION

NOT ONLY the need for a considered delicacy of approach, difficult for a reporter to attain in the hurried, weary hours that follow a meeting of city council, but also a fear of undesirable consequences dictated last week that only a terse paragraph should be devoted in the news columns to the receipt of tenders for construction of a comfort station in Beacon Hill Park.

The fact is that the design for the comfort station is worth more than comment; it is worth praise, even if the lowest tender of slightly more than $14,000 for the actual construction, not including such items as landscaping, works out very roughly at about $1,750 per unit for the sort of thing one has at home minus the bathtub.

Praise is due not just because of the attractiveness of the design, which will be a credit to the park, but for another reason of major significance. It was this second reason that might have been regarded as a challenge by a small section of the population had it been printed elsewhere than in this column where few eyes—almost certainly no juvenile delinquent eyes—stray, the comfort station will be as vandal-proof as it can be.

Stout masonry walls will protect water tanks and other vital parts of the plumbing, leaving a minimum exposed.

The city asked the Vancouver Island chapter of the Architectural Institute of British Columbia to lend its resources to the task of designing a building that would be a source of pride, but not so dainty as to fall frequent and costly victim to the senseless onslaughts of the park's nocturnal savages.

The chapter willingly gave its expert help, the local firm of Clack Clayton Pickstone producing the design.

Elmer McEwen, when he sought civic election last year, proposed that more comfort stations should be provided in downtown Victoria and adequately marked.

His contention that tourists, in particular, can fail to see much in a town where public restrooms are few and hard to find is a point that will be well taken by anyone who, trafficked, harassed by parking difficulty, has dived into a restaurant in Elsewhere, Ore., only to find the single door to the rear marked "Staff Only"; has felt obliged to swallow part of a cup of coffee, and then has hurried through two unfamiliar department stores burning cheeks and frantically before finally coming across that welcome sign.

If Mr. McEwen is successful, it is to be hoped he will escape the fate of Camille Houde who pressed a similar campaign before the war, as mayor of Montreal, and whose reward was to have comfort stations referred to by many citizens as Camilliens.

But whether or not Mr. McEwen is elected to council, and whether or not more comfort stations are provided, by the city or by merchants, the tourist bureau and city council might do well to encourage business men to indicate with some show of boldness if and where their premises contain public restrooms.

Even the comfort station behind city hall is not well marked, from the tourist's point of view. The restrooms there are no great credit to the city, and some citizens may argue that tourists wouldn't think more of Victoria after visiting them. On the other hand, the poorest accommodation looks wonderfully good under some circumstances.

There are some people, too, who will argue that most tourists are travelling in cars, and that almost every service station offers restroom facilities.

That is quite true, but what meek motorist has not at some time, sublimely unconscious of the needs of the next quarter of an hour, had his gas-tank filled brimful 15 miles back, his oil checked and his radiator topped up? What touring motorist hasn't driven for several blocks on a street like Douglas or Government looking in vain for a service station, only to find that if he had gone a block or two further, or a block to either side, he would have found lots of them?

What tourist hasn't placed his car on a parking lot or at one of the rare vacant meters, gone to have a sandwich and coffee and then found himself, and probably herself and the two little themselves, in an embarrassing position?

To keep to the subject, even at the expense of straying from the field of civic affairs, most service station operators will vouch for a strange circumstance of restroom operation! Women, many of the operators say—women, the home-makers, the house-pollsters, the dictators of the well-scrubbed look among men and boys, the pick-up-that-sweater girls—are nearly as keen about leaving things clean when they get into somebody else's public bathroom.

Men, according to the operators, usually go to some trouble to see that they leave restrooms as clean as they find them. Women, as a rule, don't. That, however, seems to be something well beyond the powers of city council to rectify.

Friends Kicked in the Face

When our minister of defence announced that "Canada works in defence matters with the United States in a self-respecting partnership," I felt outraged. The events of the last few years conclusively prove that the statement is incorrect.

I listened to the address to the world of the President of the United States, painfully and breathlessly. He said just nothing at all. And yet the U.S. foreign office is the direct and continuing cause for the situation in the Near East. And they kicked their friends in the face. Now mustering all their satellites in the Assembly of the UN the U.S. demands that Great Britain and France get out of the Suez Canal zone and let them, the U.S.S.R. and Nasser settle things. Yahi! And Canada loudly cries "Aye." Who gave Pearson the authority?

Under this worn-out bunch of bombasts at Ottawa we have loaded ourselves with war planes, civilian planes, TV sets and propaganda and pay our annual deficit by transferring annually a billion dollars' worth of natural resources which belong to our grandchildren. We hand over military control to a foreign country for no service that can help Canada. We hand over political direction to Mr. Dulles; our inefable Mr. Pearson has hitched his toy wagon to the Super-Constellation that goes flitting around the globe, whose wings cast a shadow like an ill-omened bird, foreboding ill only. Our parliamentary runlons concur complacently.

It is up to the ordinary citizen to rise in his wrath and demand that the government resign and since the U.S.S.R. has now replaced Great Britain and France on NATO, that Canada resign, suggesting that France's Spain is a fitter member — and ask the "Americans to go home."

The UN has possibilities. The British Commonwealth was the greatest and truest promoter of democracy and of peace and good will on earth. There is now passing away "a glory from the earth."

Back Up Britain

The editorial attack on Great Britain by such newspapers as the Vancouver Herald may mislead other parts of Canada, the Commonwealth and the United States into believing that this thought represents the people of British Columbia.

Any move which would deprive Great Britain of oil could quickly result in mass unemployment, reduced exports and a lower standard of living; conditions which would not only affect the British but would affect us here in Canada as well as throughout the Commonwealth. Most of the oil consumed in Great Britain passes through the Suez Canal and when, without regard for past treaties or international law, Nasser seized it, the economic life of Britain was at the mercy of a despot who has never tried to hide his contempt for the British.

Last Sunday Israel, having been publicly warned by Nasser that she would be exterminated in due course, having been under constant attack by murder squads of Egyptians with Communist guns, moved into Egypt to destroy the bases from which these suicide patrols operated. The forces of Israel, a country having one and a half million population, moved through regular Egyptian army forces, who were armed to the teeth with the latest Communist weapons, and two days later were within 20 miles of the Suez Canal. Egyptians outnumber Israelis 20 to one. What else could Britain and France do other than to occupy the Suez Canal area in self-protection? The United Nations had already proved its ineffectiveness some years ago when Egypt brusquely refused repeated United Nations' requests to allow Israeli ships to use the free and international waterway.

Those people in this country who back Britain should say that they do. There are three effective ways to make your opinion felt. First, stand up for Great Britain and be willing to explain your stand.

Second, write a post-card to your federal member of parliament and tell him that it is your wish that he back Britain on the Suez question. Third, write a post-card or letter to Sir Anthony Eden, Prime Minister of Great Britain, at 10 Downing Street, London, England, and tell him that you back Britain. Help him to confound his Labor critics who say that he stands alone.

B.C. Whisky Will Jump — But When?

Liquor Control Board officials withheld comment yesterday following an increase in the price of some brands of Canadian whisky and gin to Alberta.

B.C. will follow suit in raising the price but no one will say when. The Alberta prices on whisky were hiked by 25 to 50 cents for a 25-ounce bottle with the majority in the 25-cent and 35-cent category. On gin, the price increase ranges from 25 and 40 cents a bottle.

The price boost applies only to the brands manufactured by the two distillery groups which announced increases Oct. 1 on liquor supplied to control boards.

Three other distillers have also notified boards of higher wholesale prices and these will go up in Alberta on Dec. 1.

But all B.C. spokesmen will say is that the price of the liquor will go up before Christmas.

City Chamber Delegation Plans Parley

Delegation from Victoria Chamber of Commerce will attend a "know how" conference of Vancouver Island chambers in Nanaimo, Nov. 29.

Editor Crombie, secretary-manager, and Arnold Webb, assistant secretary, will be on a panel discussing commercial development and taxation by-law.

Meeting is being held to discuss tourist and industrial promotion and stimulate interest in provincial and national affairs.

John Sheridan, assistant general manager of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and district and field managers of the western provinces will attend the conference.

PLANNED CITY
Managua, the modern capital of Nicaragua, was specially planned to withstand earth tremors and fire.

Halloween Hooligans

With reference to the Halloween hooligans, I think the time has come for serious thinking in this regard. If these criminal outbursts of enthusiasm are allowed to continue unchecked as they are now, Halloween will become a time of dread, and respect for the police will be a thing of the past.

I believe the city council and police commission should consider what a policeman feels like to be insulted with tied hands by these creatures. (I can imagine.) The citizens pay for police protection but they don't get it on Oct. 31 — through no fault of the individual constable.

The time will come when the man in the street will have to do something about Halloween, and that may well be to get rid of the present city council and police commissioners.

In my opinion, taking over a city's main streets is serious business, detrimental to law and order. It could be stopped by the fire brigade, as they could handle a mob (I can't think of a better word) easier and more efficiently than police officers who aren't even allowed to protect themselves.

Make Business Pay

Alderman Don Smith is quoted in a recent press report as saying that he will find out why some business firms are apparently excused from paying licences and others let off with a token fee. A good idea, Mr. Smith.

If our taxes can be reduced by two mills by making our higher business firms pay their share, then let's have it. The fact that one store pays $3,000 in Victoria and $40,000 for its slightly larger store in Vancouver is astounding. These people do a good business here and enjoy all our city service and benefits.

Property owners certainly pay their full share in ever increasing amounts.

Pedestrian Hazard

The hazard in crossing Pandora Avenue near the Junction increases daily. Also there should be a crossing for pedestrians at Belmont and Fort. The lights at the Junction are confusing and, to an elderly person who cannot cross quickly, they are menacing. I have seen people try for at least five minutes to make a crossing at busy times, without being able to do so. It is imperative that something should be done to relieve the situation.

Gregory Sees Liberal Task Holding Secrets to Duties

Task of the two-man Liberal bloc in the provincial legislature next session will be to see the government "gives the people what the people apparently wanted when they voted Social Credit in again." George Gregory told Victoria College students yesterday.

The Victoria M.L.A. was the last speaker in a series of noon-time political addresses by the four main parties to the college students.

He said he had come to the conclusion after the Social Credit landslide victory last month that the sweeping result was not due to the fact that the people approved of everything the government had done but rather that "all things considered they were not ready for a change yet."

At the next session, he said, the Liberals would insist on the very highest integrity in the government, not only on matters of honesty and dishonesty, public debt and the tax situation, but integrity in reporting the situation, said Mr. Gregory.

Planners Want Stocktaking

Economic Survey
Of Province Urged

to enlist the help of the provincial cabinet in planning for a general "stock-taking" of B.C.'s industrial resources both present and future.

May Thank U.K.,
UN Official Says

Dr. A. E. Chatwin, Canadian organizer for the United Nations, believes that a British election at the present time would defeat the Eden government.

In an address to the B.C. Retired Civil Servant Association Thursday, he said the British government had acted with complete sincerity "and though we blame them now, we may have reason to thank them later."

During his speech, Dr. Chatwin traced the history of the United Nations from the present to its origin, the League of Nations.

Executive director of the planning Board which suggested that the government assist in a two-year survey of the industrial potential of the entire province.

SIX OBJECTIVES

This survey, expected to cost about $57,000, should include six main objectives, cabinet was told. They are:

1. To make a survey of existing industries.
2. To analyze the province's industrial land and resource potential.
3. To determine the amount of industrial land which will be required in the future.
4. To define the land areas which should be earmarked or zoned for future industries.
5. To estimate development costs and draw up development programs.
6. To propose methods of financing development.

The delegation was headed by Howard N. Walters, formerly general sales manager of B.C. Electric and included K. F. Fraser, vice-chairman of the Lower Mainland Regional Planning Board, and J. W. Wilson.

Cabinet was told that it had been the board's original intention just to survey the lower mainland area but "the focus has now shifted to the province as a whole."

"In the less populous parts of the province where land is plentiful, industrial site planning should not be difficult if it is not postponed too long," said the delegation.

"But in the lower mainland where land is already at a premium and where further development is expected, planning for industrial sites is urgent," it was stated.

URGENT NEED

The delegation maintained that comprehensive techno-economic studies of the industrial possibilities of B.C. should be initiated without delay.

These studies should be sponsored by the department of trade and industry and should be spearheaded by the B.C. Research Council.

Industrial site planning, as one aspect of community planning, should be encouraged.

The delegation said the planning authority would pay $23,000 of the survey costs, leaving an additional $34,000 required to complete the studies.

"What we envisage is a sort of Gordon commission into the economic prospects of Canada for B.C. alone," said Mr. Wilson.

The delegation was told that cabinet would study the suggestion.

King Fisherman Contest

Entry Total Will Top 5,160

With a few entries yet to be returned by boatowners, the total number of fish entered in the Daily Colonist's second annual King Fisherman Contest as of Thursday evening was 5,159, close to three times as many as were received Fishing, as far as the contest is concerned, ended on Oct. 31. It started on May 15.

Although October started with a flurry, the end of the salmon season and bad weather saw entries reduced to a trickle in the last two weeks. So far, only 174 fish were weighed in during October. Of these, 178 were coho, 69 were spring salmon and 27 were trout.

That brought the season-long totals to 2,514 spring salmon, 2,342 coho salmon and 119 trout. There were no Tyee entered which were caught in October and the total for the biggest of salmon is 184. To be eligible for the contest, salmon must weigh at least five pounds and trout must be at least two pounds.

NOTRE DAME, Ind.—The postman's burden was heavy at Notre Dame. Letters and telegrams flooded in for Moose Krause, the athletic director, for Terry Brennan, the football coach, for Rev. Edmund Joyce, executive vice-president and head of the faculty council on athletics. Telephones kept ringing in the office of Charley Callahan, the public relations man.

"Mostly the same question," Father Joyce said, plucking a telegram from a basket on his desk. It read: "What happened Notre Dame football?" and the signature identified the sender as a member of the class of 1947.

Notre Dame has lost four of its five games thus far and fans find it difficult to believe that classes are still being conducted on the campus, that the golden dome still sits firmly on the administration building. They're asking what goes on and how long is it going to continue? Is this a temporary condition or permanent? Has Notre Dame de-emphasized football, changed its athletic policy?

"We have not," Father Joyce said, "not one iota. We believe in athletics, we want to keep on playing good football with the best opponents and we want to win. I sincerely hope we do win."

As the Ball Bounces

He sat back, grinning faintly.

"I came here as a freshman in 1933 and I was a sophomore before I saw Notre Dame win. We lost five games that year and didn't score a touchdown at home, but we came back to win from undefeated Army and saved the season. Ask Moose; he was a senior on that team. We had some great players, but opponents can be good, too."

It is no secret that Notre Dame is relying heavily on unripe sophomores because the material is thin in the senior and junior classes. There is some attrition in any four-year span; players are injured or withdrawn from the college or slunk out, though Notre Dame never advertises the fact when academic deficiency makes a kid ineligible.

"In this case," Father Joyce said, "I don't recall any failures among boys we considered important to the squad. There are some upper classmen who looked as though they would become wonderful players but simply didn't develop. If four or five had come along as we expected, they'd probably make all the difference on this team but sometimes the boy you consider a potential All-American just doesn't come along. We know they have fine coaching."

Good Guys Play Well

"In a season like this," the priest went on, "questions are asked. Are our entrance requirements too stringent? I don't think so. We have always had fine boys in here, the type we think will be fine men."

"Well," people say, "why do you have to be stricter than other schools? Why don't you adopt the 10-semester rule of other colleges so you can play a student in his fifth year? Why do you insist on a 77 average when the passing grade is 70?"

"Well, I believe this policy has been one of the reasons for our success. The boy who measures up to a reasonably high standard, who will make sacrifices to play football, is likely to be a better man and a better football player than the one who can't, or won't."

"We're not going to change. It is possible to — well, to go after the fellows who shop around, to hire a team, in fact, but we don't want it that way. Incidentally, I don't think a policy like that succeeds very long. It seems to me that when a decline sets in for a squad like that, the bottom really drops out."

The Road Ahead

Five games remain on the Notre Dame schedule with no soft touches discernible among Navy, North Carolina, Pittsburgh, Iowa and Southern California. A similar schedule for next year includes Army in Philadelphia. Concerned primarily with the job at hand, Terry Brennan looks toward 1957 without blind optimism.

"We may have to wait until these sophomores are seniors before we have a squad up to what we consider Notre Dame standards," he said. "That doesn't mean these kids couldn't develop fast but this kind of competition is tough for kids."

"We think the sophomore and freshman material is good. I hope we'll have a strong freshman group every year. In this league you need strength that is deep through all the classes, from seniors down."

Leblanc is the only survivor of five Canadians who entered the tournament but three Canucks reached the round of 16 and one—George Knudson of Winnipeg—was ousted by Bill Campbell, a top U.S. golfer, in the quarter-finals yesterday.

Injuries Hit Bays For Playoff Today

Oak Bay Drakes, who have romped through the regular season almost injury-free, have run into a series of accidents in practices during the past week and will play today's Victoria Intermediate Football League playoff game with Navy minus at least one regular.

Big Joe Kurylo, Drakes' gap-filling two-way tackle, will definitely sit out today's game. Halfbacks Jim Gillespie and Bill Hoy—rd are hobbling on bad ankles, but will probably be in action. Lineman Eno Martzler has a broken bone in his hand but will be in the lineup.

Drakes have a four-point cushion to take into today's contest, after winning the first game of the two-game, total-point series. A draw today would give them the series but on the other hand a win by an unconverted touchdown would put the B.C. championship in the hands of Frank Hindle's sailors.

Coach Jack Patrick said yesterday: "It's not so much a case of can we win, it's now become a case of we've got to win."

Game time is 2 p.m. at Macdonald Park.

Cougars Rebound on 3-1 Win; Crucial Test Comes Tonight

Victoria Cougars will be at New Westminster tonight for what could be their most important game up until now in a Western Hockey League season which has been featured by a string of hard-to-take one-goal defeats.

over the Royals and we'll be okay. But the breaks usually even up and it's taking nothing away from the Cougars' win to say that things were different last night, right down to the fact that they are scheduled twice against the Royals at a time when injuries have shelved defencemen Jim Hay and Ron Matthews.

Cougars could have won more handsily except for some fine goaling by Ilev Bentley, particularly in the second period. This time, however, that wasn't enough to beat them.

ROYALS SHORTHANDED

They opened the scoring six seconds after defenceman Dave Stewart, borrowed from Nelson of the Okanagan Hockey League, had been sent off for holding.

Then they made it 2-0 when ex-Cougar Pete Durham deflected Don Chiupka's shot, and after Max McNab had cut the lead to two with a clean break, the Cougars clinched it when Kiburn and Bruce Carmichael outthrust three Royals for possession on a play which moved jerkily from mid-ice until Carmichael broke quickly in close to pick up a short forward pass and beat Bentley smartly.

Cougars outshot the Royals by 31-26 but the margin was deceptively small. Royals, who had a 10-4 edge in the first period, mainly built up because of penalties to Carmichael and Bill Dobbey, didn't actually deserve to be as close as they were.

Hal Laycoe's veterans had a fair share of play territorially but lacked the finishing touches and the speed to cope with determined opposition.

Hay and Matthews were missed particularly because Durham didn't have one of his good nights. The ex-Cougar got his feet tangled and fell early in the second period as he seemed uncertain of whether to check Bulloch or take Chiupka, coming up on the left wing. Chiupka got the puck from Bulloch and shot just as Durham slid desperately to block the shot, but succeeded only in changing its course.

Later, in the period, with Royals trying to cash in on a penalty to Kiburn, Durham drew a silly penalty for crashing into Dobbey in front of the Victoria goal.

Durham's misfortune could have been the big play. Cougars had opened the second period sloppily and Royals were threatening to tie it when Bulloch started his rush from centre ice.

McTaggart's Dave McTaggart drew the top seeding in the men's singles competition last night as the opening draw was made for the Victoria Invitational badminton tournament, which begins this morning at 10 at the Amphion Street courts.

McTaggart was given the favorite's position over Don Davis, former United States junior singles champion and third-ranked American singles player. Both play their opening matches at 11 this morning.

In the ladies singles division, first-seeded Clair Levay of Vancouver, a former Canadian ladies singles champion, drew a bye in the first round. Maureen Bray of Victoria, seeded second, will play R. McGregor at 11.

... Delayed by Suez Fighting

The Olympics are an international movement," said committee delegate Lewis Lutton. "We are unconcerned and uninterested in politics."

Meanwhile, it was learned the Olympic "peace flame," which was ignited Friday on Mt. Olympus in Greece, will be more than 12 hours late in reaching Australia because of the fighting in Egypt.

The plane carrying the flame—in a miner's lamp—will be re-routed by way of Basra and Istanbul because the fighting has closed the regular Cairo air route. It will reach Sydney next Tuesday night.

Most Olympic officials, however, agreed there was no danger that the games will be cancelled.

The Middle East and Hungarian conflicts already have created a tense atmosphere in the Olympic village. Bewildered Hungarians were sitting around the camp awaiting some news from their homeland. The Egyptians pulled out of the games last week when the Suez crisis first flared up, but the Israeli team still is entered and is due here next week.

The Greek Olympic team for Melbourne is expected to fly to Melbourne in three chartered planes.

The bulk of the Russian Olympic team is expected to fly to Melbourne in three chartered planes.

McLeod Sparks Canuck Win; Regals Stopped in Overtime

Vancouver Canucks, who got off to a shaky Western Hockey League start by losing four of their first five games, haven't taken long to get back into the thick of things at the top of the Western Division standings.

Canucks made it four in a row last night by beating Winnipeg Warriors, 5-3, before 3,700 Vancouver fans, and now are in a second-place tie with New Westminster.

At Edmonton, the Regals boomed from behind to force overtime on the fine play of coach Don Raleigh. The ex-NHL veteran set up Bias Voss for the 3-4 goal in the third period, then plunked in the tying goal with 52 seconds out and Regals gambling with six attackers and goalie Lucien Dechene out of his nets.

However, it was not so all as Don Poile scored less than two minutes after the extra period started to break it up. Poile had previously scored a goal and assisted on another.

It was the fourth overtime game this season for Regals. They had won two and tied one.

Impulse Pays Off;
Doug Collects $60

By JIM TAYLOR

Smith, 555 (204); Ron Wilson,

Doug Romkey had a sudden urge to roll some fivepins at 11 last Saturday night. Obeying the impulse he went to Capital City Bowladrome and walked out half an hour later $60 richer.

Romkey rolled a 404 game, and became the first bowler this season to crack the Capital City "Pot of Gold" competition. In operation since the beginning of the season, the competition is restricted to open play and pays $5 to the bowler with the highest single game score, providing it is more than 355.

No one had qualified until Saturday and the prize had built up to $60.

An interesting sidelight is that Dick Jewsbury came within an hour of taking the money instead of Romkey. Jewsbury rolled a 372 single in an 802 triple Saturday afternoon, and if Romkey hadn't decided to do some late bowling, the money would have gone to Jewsbury.

Another fivepinner made big news at the Esquimalt Bowladrome this week. Phil Young, bowling for Esquimalt Meat Market, pounded the pins for a fine 940 triple, putting together games of 308, 302 and 330.

Tony Bishop was runner-up at Esquimalt with 840 (314), followed by Joan White, 758; Jimmy Gallant, 769 (329); Dean, 751; Reg Waggoner, 751; Bev Speirs, 747 (311); Vic Flint, 741; Art Aldridge, 740; A. Schaub, 730; Fred Jenkins, 726; C. Pickett, 739 (349); S. Jackson, 725 (328); Ken Bendall, 737, and Tom Wilson, 715. Vern Tillman had a 368 single.

At Gibson's Bowladrome, H. Plowman had an 810 triple. Harry Cool, 742; M. Martin, 745; Bill McKinnon, 761 (307); Stan Gallop, 723; Cy Walters, 733 (320); Bill Cool, 709, and R. Davidson, 706 posted the other high scores.

Jack Bacon posted the highest triple in tenpin circles, finishing with 693 in the Gibson's Bowladrome senior league Tuesday night. Included in the threesome were games of 204, 211 and 191.

Cec Dixon was next with 581 (208), followed by Roy Bege, 573 (211); J. Ferrie, 570 (215); Bud Marty, 573 (209); George Brown, 557 (221); G. Bamford, 555 (205); W. Day, 546; Tom Hart, 543 (200); Ted Bowcott, 544, and L. Kamann, 540 (203).

Top in the women's tenpin leagues were Dot Bennett, with 521 in the Strathcona League, and Tess Kamann (476) and Jessie Howard (466) in the Victoria Women's Major League at Gibson's.

Wilbur Webb led the Mixed League at Gibson's with 540 and N. Gamble had a 587 (212, 207) in Gibson's Commercial League. Roy Begg, manager at Strathcona Bowling Alleys, had the highest score in his senior tenpin league, a 598 (224) series. Bob Bystead, with 583 (212); Herb Chandler, 579 (202); Wilf Owners Tired...

O.C. Rookies Scorn Proposal

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Out of a clear sky, flawed only by the last farewells of unlucky horseplayers jumping off bridges, a thunderbolt has descended on Britain's 5,000 bookmakers. Some people want to nationalize them!

That would be just about the effect of a proposal now before the House of Commons.

The proposal by the owners was made at a meeting of about a dozen people, a leading bookmaker told a reporter. "The bulk of the owners aren't in favor of it at all."

Whatever happens, it's a sure thing bookies won't be easily tamed. It is probably true that most racegoers are sentimental about the big cigars, and want to keep them around as a colorful and indispensable part of the racing atmosphere. But there is a growing feeling that bookies must put more money into the sport.

Financially, the British turf is in a bad way. The owners stress that in this country, the men who race horses themselves provide about 40 per cent of the prize money, compared with 8 per cent in France and 1 per cent in the United States.

As things stand now, betting is conducted through the tote, which has an annual turnover of about £25,000,000, and through bookmakers off and on the course, whose total take is greatly in excess of the pari-mutuel figure. Approximately 89 per cent of the total wagered on the tote is returned in winning bets. About 1500,000 goes back into racing. Off-the-course bookmakers, on the other hand, contribute nothing to racing. On the course, the chief bookie of any one firm pays four times the normal admission price. His two or three clerks get in for the same fee as the spectators.

Representatives of bookmakers, aware of the discrepancy, are discussing the matter with the jockey club, racing associations and government departments. Meanwhile, they say they don't think it is timely for owners to put forward "their own petty claims" to a bigger share of the racing melon.

Representatives of bookmakers, aware of the discrepancy, are discussing the matter with the jockey club, racing associations and government departments. Meanwhile, they say they don't think it is timely for owners to put forward "their own petty claims" to a bigger share of the racing melon.

O.C. Rookies Scorn Proposal

LONDON (CP)—Out of a clear sky, flawed only by the last farewells of unlucky horseplayers jumping off bridges, a thunderbolt has descended on Britain's 5,000 bookmakers. Some people want to nationalize them!

That would be just about the effect of a proposal now before the House of Commons.

The proposal by the owners was made at a meeting of about a dozen people, a leading bookmaker told a reporter. "The bulk of the owners aren't in favor of it at all."

Whatever happens, it's a sure thing bookies won't be easily tamed. It is probably true that most racegoers are sentimental about the big cigars, and

Terrible Toll on Island

Mine Disaster Recalled

Mine explosions such as that which shook Springhill, N.S., Thursday, are not unknown on Vancouver Island.

The most terrible was the dust explosion which took the lives of some 120 men at the Vancouver Island Colliery on May 13, 1909.

The Colonist correspondent reported:

G. W. McFarland B.C. Appointee

Gordon W. McFarland has been reappointed to represent the provincial government on the board of management of the General Hospital.

The neighboring community of Lathrop suffered from a similar explosion in 1909.

Days after the explosion, bodies were recovered. One man had scratched in white chalk on a shovel the fact that he had lived 11 hours after the explosion.

More than 100 miners escaped from an explosion which rocked the mine.

How to get more living space

THE EASY WAY

by Cam Forrest
PV do-it-yourself advisor

"In the old days, families often lived in cramped quarters while valuable space lay wasting in basement or attic. Today, thanks largely to new and cleverly designed building materials, the average home-owner can convert this space into extra rooms for sleeping, recreation or fun—and get solid satisfaction in doing it. This is especially so with PV Hardboards. These strong, damage-resistant all-wood panels come in a variety of forms that take the worry and back-ache out of building walls and ceilings. Two of these are shown below."

"Here's your ceiling"

... and it's a beauty. These 4' x 4' panels of PV Square-tek are grooved in squares to form a smart grid pattern. Light in weight for easy overhead handling, each panel butts against the next, concealing the joint and forming a handsome ceiling design. The perfect do-it-yourself ceiling medium!"

"Here are your walls"

... they go up in a hurry with PV Plank Board. Precision-cut vertical grooves add a distinctive plank-like pattern to a surface that takes paint beautifully. Comes in 4' x 8' panels, ½" thick for application right over the studs. Most of the nails are concealed in the grooves."

West Africa Missionary Speaker Here

A United Church of Canada medical missionary to Angola, Africa, since 1928, Dr. W. Sidney Gilchrist, will speak at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Metropolitan United Church.

Also attending will be the congregation of Esquimalt United Church.

Born in Prince George, Nova Scotia, Dr. Gilchrist is a graduate of Dalhousie University.

He is superintendent of the Hara Kandi Hurd Memorial Hospital at Boma, Angola, and director of public health in that area with hundreds of African villages under his supervision.

He served with the Canadian Medical Corps from 1940 to 1945. At 8:45 p.m. Dr. Gilchrist will proceed to First United Church to speak in the congregation there.

Earlier in First United, at 7:30 p.m., a film based upon the United Church's extension work in West Africa, Labrador, a large one-minute film, will be shown.

The film has just been released by the Board of Information and Stewardship of the United Church.

A filmstrip on Christian Symbolism will be shown following evening in Christ Church Cathedral tomorrow, with Dean Brian Whitlow commenting on the slides.

After the filmstrip instruction, a reception for Rev. and Mrs. Christopher Hubbard, who arrived this week from England, will be given in the Memorial Hall by the Women's Parish Guild. Mr. Hubbard is the new junior assistant priest at the cathedral.

Rev. D. C. O'Connell will preach farewell services tomorrow in St. John's the Evangelist Anglican Church, corner Bay.

New pastor of the church will be Rev. P. J. Walsh, who has been preaching Sundays in Metchem and Sooke.

Mr. O'Connell leaves Tuesday to accept an appointment as rector of St. John the Baptist Church in Ephraim, Wash.

Message from the Minister

His Plan Brings Rest

This is another in a series of articles by Greater Victoria clergy, appearing weekly on the Daily Colonist Church page.

By REV. C. P. STEWART
Free Methodist Church

"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Matthew 11:28.

This glorious invitation carries with it the charm of the impartial. It is race-wide and soul-deep; without distinctions and without exclusions.

The pauper and the prince with his empty hand, are alike included.

It carries the charm of the essential. This rest, amid restlessness, is no empty luxury. It is an absolute necessity in these times of appalling emotional, moral, and physical breakdown.

He calls us to experience the priceless rest that comes to those who are living in harmony with God. This call carries with it more than charm—it presents a real challenge, in that He calls us from a life of sin to a life of righteousness, where by we accept His plan for our life.

Leave out the supernatural power of the Lord Jesus and where can you find real rest? Even the greatest human attainment, without a personal knowledge of the saving grace of God, is doomed to end in frustration.

The wonderful words of our text were uttered by the One who came to bridge the gulf between two worlds.

He has shattered the massive tyranny of the powers of darkness, has changed radically and forever the human prospect and total aspect of the world, and has brought life and immortality to light.

He alone is able to bind up the broken hearted; placid de-liverance to the captives, and bid a distracted world to come and experience the transforming power of the grace of God.

Church of Nazarene

Revival Campaign Precedes Dedication

Here Nov. 21

First Church of the Nazarene's nearly completed $25,000 church building and $12,000 parsonage will be dedicated March 3, 1957. Rev. Arthur F. Grobe, minister, announced this week.

Rev. Grobe, a Vancouverite of 10 years, is a general superintendent of the Church of the Nazarene, will perform the dedication after holding a week-long series of revival meetings in the new church.

The new church at 2471 Quadra was started about two years ago and first services in the uncompleted building were held in April, 1954. It seats about 200. Seven Sunday school classrooms occupy the basement.

Although not yet finished, Mr. Grobe, his wife and son have lived in the parsonage for about six weeks.

Mr. Grobe completed a year as minister of the church last Sunday.

Sloop, Sailors Battle 500 Stormy Miles

Two bearded Victoria mariners sailed their 29-foot Dragon class sloop into Gabriola Bay yesterday after a 500-mile voyage from British Columbia.

Owner of the Danish-built sloop, Nette, Jeremy D. K. 27, 2800 Macdonald, who sailed the craft to Kimsat in May with a brother and a friend, said: "Sure, we'll do it again, but not right away."

His companion for the return voyage, Michael Rippigale, 24, 484 Clifton Ave., left home a month ago to work in Kimsat. "Gales up to 50 miles an hour blew out their main sail twice, once while they were attempting to cross treacherous Queen Charlotte Sound and again in Laramie Passage near Bella Bella."

The adventurous pair left Kimsat Oct. 8, putting in at bays and small coastal settlements whenever the continuous southeast gales were too fresh or the sail needed mending.

The little after stops at Alert Bay, Campbell River, Courtenay and Nanaimo, reached Royal Victoria Yacht Club at 6 a.m. yesterday.

Peace Force Wins Support

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—The Syrian Embassy in London said today that the Syrian army had placed its armed forces under the command of Gen. Abdel Hakim Amer, commander-in-chief of the Egyptian forces.

TEHRAN, Iran (UP)—Premiers of all the Baghdad Pact powers except Britain will meet here next week to discuss the Middle East crisis. Britain, founder of the anti-communist defence pact, was not invited. Premiers of Turkey, Pakistan, Iran and Iraq will confer.

LONDON (UP)—The Iraq Petroleum Company said last night that two of its small Middle East pipelines had been blown up but were quickly put back into operation. The damage occurred in the sheikhdom of Qatar, about 1,000 miles from Suez.

OTTAWA (UP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said last night he has never thought Canada should withdraw from the Commonwealth because of Britain's action in the Middle East. He will go before CBC television cameras Sunday to outline the government's position.

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Eden will make a TV address Saturday night on the Egyptian crisis.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has banned all weapons shipments to Israel and Egypt, and blocked development of new economic aid programs for these two warring countries as well as neighboring Syria and Jordan.

TORONTO (UP)—Officials of organizations having strong ties with the United Kingdom voted full support last night of Britain's actions in the Middle East. The British Overseas League, the Sons of England, Sons of Scotland, and the Loyal Orange Lodge were all unanimous in their opinion that the United Kingdom's moves were only in the interests of peace.

Egypt has called all available manpower to repel the Israelis and to prevent the British and French from occupying the Canal Zone. These commandos, parading in Cairo, have participated in raids into Israeli territory but do not have technical and military training equal to that of the Israelis.—(CPC)

Stevenson Offers Peace Plan

DETROIT (AP)—Adlai Stevenson Friday night came up with a four-point plan which he said a determined United States government could use "to stop the war and strike a blow for peace" in the Middle East.

"Whatever the provocation," Stevenson said, "aggression can no longer be tolerated in the atomic age."

The Democratic presidential candidate laid out Friday afternoon a preliminary speech in Cleveland.

Stevenson said what he termed "the immediate blunders" of the Eisenhower administration could be solved if the "grand alliance upon which the fate of all free men depends" is restored.

"Then he laid down his plan for peace."

"First, security must be restored along the borders of Israel from her neighbors."

"Second, we must insist that passage of ships through the HERSEY, Pa. (AP)—Vice President Nixon said Friday night that the United Nations had given "a worldwide vote of confidence" to President Eisenhower's foreign policy.

In a network radio television address, Nixon replied to a similar speech by Stevenson Thursday night in which the Democratic presidential candidate said the United States is standing alone in a world of unfriendly nations in the Middle Eastern crisis.

U.S. Notified Before Attack

PARIS (NANA)—Anglo-French intervention in Egypt came only after a frantic middle-of-the-night exchange of telephone calls between Washington and the British and French capitals less than three hours after news of the Israeli attack on Egypt was received here.

The decision to go it alone hung in the balance for more than an hour while French and British cabinets instructed their ambassadors in the U.S. to seek Secretary of State Dulles' agreement to add American naval and air forces in the Mediterranean to the Anglo-French armada. It is reliably reported.

When trans-Atlantic telephones conveyed America's unexpectedly sharp rejection of the proposal, the two cabinets immediately voted intervention.

U.S. Diplomats Stopped

Russians Bar Budapest Exit

WASHINGTON (UP)—The state department last night "energetically protested" to Russian Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin the action of Soviet troops who held up a party of American diplomats seeking to flee Budapest.

Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy said he expected the incident must be due to an error on the part of the Soviet military command. He said he could not imagine why Soviet military forces were in that area.

BUDAPEST (AP)—A mysterious house on a wooded hill in Buda was opened yesterday by Soviet partisans. They said they found it equipped with a torture chamber operated by the secret police. It is located on what is called "Freedom Hill."

BUDAPEST (Reuters)—Mrs. Edith Martin, a 68-year-old English woman who literally "kept the flag flying" in her prison in Russia.

Armed UN Patrol

May Guard Borders

OTTAWA (UP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said Friday night that a number of countries, including the United Kingdom, appear interested in the Canadian proposal for an international peace force in the Middle East.

However, he said reporters on before any UN decision in the his arrival at UN headquarters in New York that he had the impression that the plan would be acceptable to Egypt.

Mr. Pearson said he understands that the Canadian proposal now is being discussed in London and Paris.

He said its success would depend on whether it was acceptable to the countries of the United Nations.

The international force of perhaps 10,000 men could guard the borders between Israel and Egypt. It would be a peace force, not a police force, Mr. Pearson said.

He said he hopes the Canadian idea, associated by the competitive resolution passed by the UN, will make a resolution on a police force more acceptable.

However, Canada's government, he said, would not be bound by a resolution to discuss numbers, would know what strength the

Novel Variations Make Toast More Interesting

This morning we are going to make a variety of toast to catch up on unexpended recipes which we hope will be of interest to you.

SALMON SOUFFLE WITH CHEESE SAUCE

Half cup quick cooking tapioca, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 2 cups flaked salmon, 1 cup mayonnaise, 1 cup grated cheese, 2 eggs, 1 cup parsley, 1 cup onion, 1 cup juice, 1 egg separated.

Combine tapioca, seasonings and milk in top of double boiler. Bring to scalding point and cook five minutes, stirring frequently. Add flaked fish, parsley and onion to first mixture. Remove from heat and stir in well-beaten egg yolks. When cool fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish and bake in slow oven, 325 degrees, for about 1 1/2 hours. Make about 2 cups white sauce and throw in 1 cup grated cheese, or for speed, just melt one of those little packages of cream cheese and serve this sauce with the souffle.

The next request amused me. How do you make the weekend chicken look did you?

Well, for those who want to try it, here is a recipe for

BUTTER CRISP CHICKEN

Take 2 to 3 pound chicken, cut into serving pieces. Mix 1 cup flour, a generous shaking of salt, pepper and paprika in a paper bag. Put in the chicken pieces and shake well to coat thoroughly. Heat oil in a heavy skillet to 350 degrees. Fry for about 10 minutes. If you have kitchen tongs, turn out with them. If not, use a slotted spoon. Drain on paper towels. Serve with a tomato sauce, or a simple butter sauce.

salt? 1/2 cup seedless raisins. Pour the milk on raisins and let stand overnight. Add the remaining ingredients and turn into a greased baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven for 1 1/2 hours.

The next question refers to toast and the reader asks: How can I make toast more interesting? Well, toast in some form is always popular, so here are some suggestions for varying it.

CHEESE TOAST

Sprinkle grated cheese on top of toast and broil under the broiler for a couple of minutes. Then sprinkle generously with butter. Butter made by creaming together equal parts of butter and finely chopped parsley.

CINNAMON HONEY TOAST

Toast one side of the bread. Spread the un-toasted side with honey and sprinkle with cinnamon. Broil until the honey is bubbling and the bread lightly browned and crisp.

ORANGE TOAST

Combine 1/2 cup unsifted orange juice with 1/2 cup sugar. Boil in a saucepan until thickened. Spread on toast and broil under the broiler for a couple of minutes. A little different but quite amusing.

TRICK OF THE DAY

When vacuum cleaning little scatter eggs put them on top of a rug so that they won't slip.

How to Organize A Sellout Bazaar

It's bazaar time and women all across the country are organizing and holding their own sellout bazaars.

Home cooking and good publicity bring out the best in a sellout bazaar. In November, says Marie Holmes, a November chateau and here are a few tips you can use to make your bazaar a success.

To avoid a crush around the food counter, divide your display into sections as possible. Have separate tables for soups, pies, cakes, etc., but keep the food counter in one place. Put the food counter in a place where it is easily accessible and where the staff can see it.

RAISIN BREAD PUDDING

Take 1/2 cup raisins, 1/2 cup milk, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 cup eggs, 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup vanilla, 1/2 cup cinnamon, 1/2 cup nutmeg, 1/2 cup salt.

Week's Sewing Buy

Two suitcases are the "Take Home" super and "Freezer Shift" stands especially advertised before the bazaar and they encourage customers to stay longer.

Homecoming is sure to draw a crowd, so put the food counter at the end of the hall, then visitors will see other displays first.

Don't pay off and there are several ways in which this can be tackled. Arrange for even in your church magazine and local newspaper and by door-to-door circulars. Ask local merchants to display posters in their store windows. Let the women's editor of your paper know well in advance and have her mentioned if she can spare the time.

Finally, choose an exciting name for your bazaar. It pays dividends in extra publicity.

By ROY PARRETT

This week brings your reporter to the end of three years of daily TV reporting in "TV Talk." And during this period a revolution has taken place as television has grown to manhood.

When "TV Talk" began there were only two channels to watch and both were operating on only a fraction of today's output.

The days following were exciting ones for TV fans as additional stations came on the air, improved their service and boosted their power until Victoria boasted the best TV reception in Canada, and even rivalled American cities for TV variety.

It was your reporter's pleasure to keep local television addicts informed of TV progress through this column, the first daily TV effort in the Pacific Northwest. Through frequent trips to television studios in Seattle, Tacoma, Bellingham and Vancouver, the Colonist kept its readers up to date on all TV developments as they happened.

With the arrival of local TV, later this month, the wheel has turned a full cycle and a new era of TV reporting will be born as programming becomes the important field to be covered. The TV infant of early "TV Talks" has grown to manhood.

And with the coming of local TV, your reporter is turning over the job of TV reporting to Bruce Lowther, a full-time Colonist reporter, well-known entertainment writer, who will continue "TV Talk" on an expanded scale, beginning next week.

At 1.45 this afternoon Oregon plays California in college football on channel 4.

Outlaws try to get rid of the only witness to a gang murder in "The Lone Ranger" on channel 11 at 4.30.

"Busters On Wheels" finds Sky King helping a desperate ranch owner at 5 p.m. on channel 4.

Los Campi and Dick Hoover battle for top bowling honors on channel 4 at 6.

"No Name Ridge" is the place where the leatherheads fight to keep out the North Koreans at 6 p.m. on channel 5.

"The Buccaneers" capture a treasure-laden galleon manned by slaves on channel 12 at 6.30.

Western singers singing country favorites are on channel 4's "Grand Old Opry" at 7 p.m.

The adventures encountered by members of an Amazon safari are shown on channel 5 at 7.

The Holiday Ranch gang has a program of old-time favorites on channel 2 at 7.30.

Channel 5, at 7.30, presents part two of "Col. Blimp" and his fighting experiences.

Ferry Connor's special guests are Gisele MacKenzie and Nat "King" Cole at 8 p.m. on channel 4.
